COLUMBUS DAY CELEBRATION WINS PLAUDITS OF ALL

Arrange Good Program For Next Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the board of trade has been postponed until Friday evening, October 29th. This decision was reached this morning when Chairman Reese and heads of committees conferred on arrangements for making the October meeting one of the most interesting ever held by the board. A luncheon and speaking program was under discussion, but it was impossible to get hold of the speakers talked of for this Friday evening, hence the postponement. The lunch committee of the board will serve an inexpensive lunch to be paid for by each member. The speaking program is in the hands of the civic committee and prominent members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce will participate in the speaking.

Monessen will launch an Americanization drive, along with other towns and cities in western Pennsylvania, and the speakers will dwell on this all important and all absorbing topic. The board of trade will likely carry out a program similar to that in other places.

The object of the general campaign is to stimulate interest in the night school and other work designed to acquaint the foreign born with American laws, customs and modes of living as regards sanitation, personal hygiene and the care of children. Leaders will be appointed and it is the intention to have each leader address his countrymen in their native language, explaining the object.

Women Pay Tax

Aproximately one half of the 62 Westmoreland county tax collectors have made their returns on their collections received from women who paid their forty cent poll taxes. The total collections made and reported are just $1,946.44, and just 4,866 women in those districts are qualified to vote. Of course there are some others who pay property or money at interest taxes and they will have the right to cast ballots at the next election.

Approximately 38,000 women were enrolled by the 195 precinct assessors and from the returns made by half of the collectors, the indications are that not more than 11,000 Westmoreland county women will be qualified to vote at the next election.

Over 54,000 men are enrolled on the registration books and at least 45,000, it is estimated will be qualified to vote. Moving from one district to another within sixty days before the election may lose many the right to vote, while death and failure of others to pay taxes cuts down the number eligible to be entitled to vote. But it is conceded by well informed political experts that a record breaking vote will be polled in this county on November 2.

Injured in Accident

Monday night on the Donora brick road beyond the Monongahela Country club, occurred an automobile accident which wrecked the Packard touring car belonging to R. E. Byers, of Monongahela, and driven by his colored chauffeur, David Ramsey, and more or less injuring seven of his friends. Those in the car with the driver were Mrs. Harry Thomas, Mrs. Frank Simmons, Mrs. Isaac Viverette and little daughter Katherine, Mrs. Emmett McPherson and children, Jane and Clifford.

All received cuts about the head and face together with bodily injuries, the extent of which is not known.

The car, in rounding a curve, was going too fast and struck the bank, overturning it, and pinning the passengers underneath. An oncoming car rescued the party and took all to the office of Dr. G. H. Murphy in Monongahela, where their wounds were given attention, and later they were taken to their homes where they are resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Mrs. Viverette is reported as the worst injured.

Celebrate Armistice Day

McKeesport will observe Armistice Day with a parade and a street entertainment November 11. Men and women who served in the last three wars in which the United States took part are to participate. At the same time the opening of Market street, which is being improved with asphalt, is to be celebrated. The American Legion and Veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars are arranging for the day.

Among the out of town men of prominence here yesterday to attend the Columbus Day celebration were Hon. James M. Beacom, Hon. Curtis H. Gregg, Adam M. Wyant, Philip K. Shaner and Alex McConnell, of Greensburgh, Congressman John H. Wilson of Butler and Attorney Joseph Bell of Pittsburgh. They all enjoyed the day and took advantage of the occasion to meet many friends.

Funeral Services

The funeral services of Miss Kate Seelye whose death occurred yesterday morning, will take place this evening at 7:30 at the home of her sister, Mrs. Walter Robins, No. 1 McKee avenue. Rev. D. R. Graham, pastor of the M. E. church, will preach the sermon and the choir from that church will sing. The remains will be shipped Thursday morning on the 6:30 train to Adrian, Michigan, the former home of the deceased, for interment.

Miss Seelye had been a resident of Monessen for the past eight years, and made her home with her sister, Mrs. Robins. She was a seamstress and through her profession had become widely and favorably known. She was a life long member of the Methodist church and an active worker. She was stricken by illness about two years ago and for several weeks prior to her death was confined to her bed.

Poland and Russia Agree to End War October 18

(By United Press)

London, Oct. 13---Peace has been signed between Poland and Russia, effective at midnight, October 18.

Renewed fighting is expected between the Bolsheviki and Gen. Wrangel's troops in the south. Other war clouds gathered in Lithuania where the government was reported drafting troops at Kovno to expel General Zeligowski and his soldiers, who seized Vilna and made it a free city, a dispatch from Constantinople said Armenia had declared war on Turkish Nationalists and ordered general mobilization.

Dispatches from Riga said a peace-time ceremony accompanied signing of the peace treaty. The lengthy agreement was read three times, in Russian, Polish and Lithuanian.

In addresses previous to the signing, commissioners for the two nations expressed confidence the treaty will be made permanent. Through it Poland gains in territory and has succeeded in establishing a corridor between Lithuania and Russia. The east succeeded in avoiding payment of gold first claimed by Poland.

Deadly Poisonous---Beware

BIG PARADE GOOD SPEECHES AND PROGRAM OF SPORTS HOLD ATTENTION OF THOUSANDS

The Columbus day celebration was the success it was planned and good weather favored the occasion, and there was not a hitch in the program which started early by the noise of daylight fireworks until last night when the last display in Electric park told the crowd that the day's ceremonies were at an end. Everything moved on schedule time until the evening when there was the usual delay in starting the fireworks. However, the character of the display, was ample pay for the wait. The big ceremonies took place in the afternoon when the parade featured the program. Delegations of marchers started off on time and under the direction of Chief Marshal Harry Lebowitz, the parade moved along the scheduled streets. Mr. Lebowitz substituted for Mr. Cushing, who was called away on account of his brother's death.

Several bands furnished music, and the parade, headed by mounted police, and the Volunteer Fire department looked spectacular. The firemen had the truck decorated beautifully for the occasion, and the marchers were dressed in white uniforms, and applause greeted them at many street sections. The school children dressed in white, also made a great impression. Hundreds of people crowded the downtown streets and witnessed the pageant.

Immediately after the parade, the speaking took place at Electric park, from a platform specially erected for the occasion. Hon. James M. Beacom of Greensburg, was the first speaker. He was followed by Curtis H. Gregg, ex-congressman from this district. Both made stirring patriotic addresses, dwelling on the history of the occasion, and winding up with a strong appeal for a broader policy of Americanization. Jos. Bell, attorney of Pittsburgh, and Rev. Pisani, a local pastor, were the other speakers on the program. The audience listened attentively to the excellent speeches.

The football game following the speaking at the park brought the Keystones of this city and the American Legion team of Brownsville together for the second time this season and after fighting back and forth in the heat and dust, the game ended in a scoreless tie. The hot weather made it rather unpleasant for the players and neither team was able to display its usual "pep." The locals started off as if they would walk right through the visitors, but after nearing the goal line, they faltered, and from that time on, it was nip and tuck, with neither team having much advantage.

The score:

Chadwick	c.	Sappa
Vigilotti	r. g.	Venneri
Philips	r. t.	M. Mahusky
Polits	r. e.	Solole
Fisher	l. g.	Gavolle
Sab'n	l. t.	Perri
Miller	l. e.	Wagner
Long	q. b.	Tezzelia
Allen	l. h.	Shumaker
Pasko	f. b.	I. Mahusky
Lascelles	r. h.	D'Aprile

Substitution: Brownsville, Kisner for Philips; Brown for Miller; Keystones: Sappa for D'Aprile, Pisica for Wagner, Kirkpatrick for Solcole. Referee---Bastefano. Umpire---Fletcher.

The winners of the various races are as follows: Greased pig race, Edward Nixon; pie eating contest, Albert Creey; school girls, 50 yard dash, Helen Pollock, first, Norma Constantine, second. Boys' race, first, Joe Jenulis, second, Frank Selishmi; girls' race Mary Pollock, first, Mary Swan, second; three legged race, Ward and Doyle, winners. 220 yard dash open, I. Hunter, first, Joseph Beebeth, second.

In the evening the Patella band entertained the thousands that had gathered for the fireworks with a concert that was highly appreciated, as the band is considered one of the best in the United States, having the highest paid musicians and some of the best known music writers in the world. Their appearance here yesterday is considered a great entertainment to the community. The selections rendered were of the highest class and proved beyond a doubt that the organization is composed of musicians of no mean ability. The Richardson children, novelty entertainers of Pittsburgh, delighted the audience with their songs and dances. Immediately following the concert, the fireworks display took place, lasting over an hour, and during which time hundreds of brightly colored aerial bombs and beautiful set pieces were displayed to the delight of the great crowd, who unanimously wended their way homeward when the huge "Good Night" was displayed. The day was a success in every way and the committee is to be congratulated for its efforts.

Cleveland Celebrates

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 13---World champions.

Not a thing else was on Cleveland's mind today.

From the youngster fans who played hookey from school to show off autographed balls to the veteran bleacherite who had been awaiting the day for forty-two years, all this Lake City paid tribute to Tris Speaker and his champion Indians.

It is all over. The Indians won and the second championship flag in as many years comes to Ohio.

The world series of 1920 is dead, but the deeds of Cleveland's idols will linger long.

The end came yesterday as dramatically as it had been sensational throughout.

When the game little Sewell completed the last out, a crowd of 27,000 fans swarmed on the field and refused to leave until their breath had been partially by cheers and a few fans began to get some of their hits.

Tris Speaker sprinted through the throng, vaulted over a front box and took his wife in his arms.

She cried as if the eyes of her son were not dry.

The mob jammed around until police had to be called to make a path for the team to the club house where they were waiting to give him the big cheer.

Stan Coveleski, hero of a series, if there ever was one, blushed like a school girl and stood in the midst of an ever gathering close to move until the blue suit came after him.

The other players had similar difficulties.

As in two of the games, the victory of this year came on the determined arm of Coveleski and a punch in the stick.

The game little southpaw shut the Robins out and held them completely at bay, while his offense was pound-

Daily Leads With Service on Ball Games

Score another for the Daily Independent. Yesterday it was the only afternoon paper in Western Pennsylvania carrying a detailed account of the final game of the World's Series. Play by play the game was received over the United Press, starting shortly after two o'clock and when at 3:55, the last man was put out for the Brooklyn team and the world championship base ball honors won by Cleveland, the copy was quickly sent to the linotype operator, and in ten minutes the paper was on press, and shortly after four o'clock, while hundreds of calls were being received as to the progress of the game, the papers were being sold on the streets to eager fans who marveled at the service rendered by the local paper.

The United Press service of the World's Series has proven a revelation to local fans who have been receiving the news right "off the bat" of the games played in Brooklyn and Cleveland. Final reports of the games have been received in Monessen not later than five minutes after the last man was out in the ninth inning, and in some instances, the local operator was on the wire when the player making the final out, was at the bat, and just as he was retired, the word was received here, local fans getting the news before the spectators at the game fully realized the game was over.

During the football season, the results of all collegiate games will be received by the Independent over this wire and already special arrangements are being made to cover the election, and a service that cannot be duplicated will be received from all parts of the United States and the citizens of this town will receive the same service that only the large cities have enjoyed in the past.

Change Flying Field

Aviator David Ruse was compelled to change his landing field today, owing to the numerous school children who flocked about the plane at the Luce farm yesterday, making it impossible to start or land. Hundreds of children gathered about the plane following the first flight and fearing for their safety in landing, arrangements were made for a flying field at Lynn's Grove, where the plane was taken this morning and will be stationed in the future. Lynn's Grove is near the street car line and along the improved road, so that prospective passengers can easily reach the field.

At noon today Mr. Ruse made a pretty exhibition flight over town, going through various stunts and dropping hand bills announcing the new location of the field. Passengers are being carried this afternoon over the valley and the aviator will have a busy week with a long list of prospective passengers who are anxious to enjoy the thrills of an air flight.

No Arrests Were Made

Despite the fact that thousands of people were on the streets yesterday celebrating, all was quiet and serene in police circles and not an arrest was made during the entire day. A young girl from Arnold City, was picked up for street walking, and given car fare home by the Burgess, and warned to keep out of town in the future.

Dangerous Crossings

A. Howard Jones, representing the Public Service Commission, met yesterday with officials of Washington county, the Pitsburgh Railways and the Highway department relative to electric railway crossings on the Speers-Allenport road, which are regarded as very dangerous. Some time ago the commissioners took the matter up with the Pitsburgh Railways company in an effort to have the crossings eliminated so that improvements could be completed on the road. The railways company at that time refused to do anything in the matter and then the commissioners made complaint to the Public Service Commission. Yesterday the first hearing was held and the Public Service Commission representative and various officials went over the road on a tour of inspection and a hearing will be held sometime early next month in Pittsburgh for final settlement.

Attack Workmen

(By United Press)

Stockholm, Oct. 13---Soviet troops are attacking barricaded workmen in Moscow's streets, according to unofficial dispatches received here today. The Helsingsfors correspondent of the Aftenblad said authorities were alarmed by anti-soviet demonstrations in factories at Moscow and were concentrating troops there.

Searchers Fail to Find Body of Kidnapped Child

(By United Press)

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 13---The last ray of hope that Blakely Coughlin may be alive or that his body may be found had disappeared today in the light of latest developments revealed by Major Adams, of the Pennsylvania state constabulary.

When August Pasquale, the "crank," who says he smothered P by Blakely under his coat and threw his dead body tied to an iron rail into the Schuylkill river, led Captain Gerhart of the state police, to the spot near the Coughlin home where evidence of his crime, was produced, the confession seemed verified.

Later, when the searching party with the aid of a diver, was unable to find the body, hope vanished that Pasquale's guilt would be sealed by discovery of the most incriminating evidence of all.

Pasquale, in his cell at Norristown, told of other incidents in connection with the mystery. He related how he conceived the plot to kidnap the boy. He had missed his car that night and had started to walk from Norristown to the city line to get a car to Philadelphia. On passing the Coughlin home, he happened to see Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin through the window, he says. The baby was with them and it was then, he declared, he thought of kidnapping the child.

The latest confession of the arch criminal that he murdered and robbed an old woman in Philadelphia last spring for which a young girl is being held, has not as yet been confirmed.

Pasquale's confession in connection with the smothering story, is the same sort of an admission. Major Adams states, that he gave when detectives told him his finger prints were found on the ladder that was leaning against the window of Baby Coughlin's room. He first denied knowledge of the kidnapping but when confronted with this evidence, he confessed, Major Adams said.

Magistrate Lenhardt indicated today that a lunacy commission may be appointed to investigate the mental condition of August Pasquale, confessed kidnapper. The various confessions made by Pasquale are considered symptoms of a disordered mind.

PLACING CROWN ON PAGODA

Solemn Ceremony at Mandalay That Attracted Crowds of the Devout Followers of Buddha.

A curious festival was held not long ago in Mandalay, the chief town of Burma. A new pagoda dedicated to the Buddhist religion was to be completed by the placing of a huge crown or thi upon its summit, more than 300 feet above the ground.

To witness the ceremony came Buddhists from Indo-China, from the Himalayas from Laos and Chan and Siam. Warriors from Katschin. Sorcerers from Mot and people from other places made a medley of languages like that at Babel.

On a street corner would be seen a barber pulling a customer's tooth. On another corner a Mohammedan bird dealer sold caged paroquets to Buddhists who piously set them free. At very modern booths one could buy ice cream, soda or tea Mandalay was a gorgeous spectacle and the new pagoda was the center of it.

Every pagoda has at its summit a thi, or cap, the placing of which is often a herculean task. The one now to be raised weighed several hundred pounds and consisted of a gilded ball and crown and a great spindle above it.

To get it to the top an inclined plane of bamboo scaffolding like a huge toboggan slide had been built, and was decorated with silk flags and umbrellas. Up the inclined plane the heavy cap was slowly pulled. Six days were required for the ascent and a seventh to fasten it in place.

WORK OF SPONGE GATHERERS

Divers Go to Great Depths to Collect Them From the Rocks to Which They Are Fixed.

Sponges are of many qualities, but the most highly prized is that of Syria, with a cuplike shape and a yellowish pale color, which is found in a number of varieties.

The large sponge fisheries are situated along the seashores of Greece, Syria and of certain parts of the Adriatic, as well as along the Tripoli and Tunisian seashores. The fishing of sponges is effected by divers who are let down from a boat to depths of 10, 20 and sometimes 25 meters, and pull the sponges from the rocks to which they are fixed Some sponge fishermen use a long trident, but this system is fortunately falling into disuse, since it spoils the sponges. In better-equipped fishing grounds the gathering of sponges is effected by divers provided with diving bells or dressed in cork jackets.

Upon being gathered the sponges are squeezed, beaten and washed in order to rid them of their black coating and soft substance which gives them a very characteristic chlorine odor. When they begin to whiten they are subjected to a frequently renewed solution of sulphuric ac'

Why Go to College?

I know a young Yale graduate in Philadelphia who is now convinced that a college education is a bar to wealth. "Girard" writes in the Philadelphia Press.

He is a clever electrician and got a job after leaving Yale which paid him $30 a week. In his new place he came in contact with an uneducated foreman who tried to persuade the college lad to "turn a day laborer and join the union."

He was assured that in a fortnight he could get $60 a week.

The young son of Eli stuck to his electrical job and when wiring a building in Philadelphia a boss painter told him he could get double the $30 a week he was then getting if he took up the paint brush.

Do you wonder that this youth who holds his Yale sheepskin is puzzled in figuring out just how a college education pays him?

RE: Dodge Brothers Motor Vehicle Prices.

This will authorize you to answer all inquiries on the subject of possible changes in the prices of Dodge Brothers Motor Vehicles as follows:

"Dodge Brothers' policy has ever been to give true value for the price asked. At no time have they ever demanded an excess amount for their product. As in the past, they will continue in the future to demand a fair return for their efforts."

Long ago Dodge Brothers learned that their success would follow in direct proportion to the success of their dealers. Consequently they adopted the policy and have adhered to it, and shall continue to adhere to it strictly, that at no time shall they ever do anything that would be detrimental to their Dealers' best interests.

Fire Hazzard Discovered in Fayette

(By United Press)

Altoona, Oct. 13—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and director general of the railroads, addressed a non-partisan audience composed chiefly of railroad workers in this city today on his way to the Pacific coast to campaign for Gov. Cox, the Democratic nominee for president.

Significance was attached to McAdoo's appearance here as well as in six other Pennsylvania towns today as part of the Democratic campaign committee's plan to gather in as many voters as possible for their congressional candidates in this state.

McAdoo addressed audiences in Conemaugh, Scottdale, Connellsville and Uniontown. He is accompanied by Democratic National Committeeman Joseph Guffey of Pittsburgh.

The Democrats are making a strong fight in the congressional elections of Blair and Fayette counties. Bruce Sterling is a candidate for congress in the 23rd district with former Congressman Bailey in the 19th, composed of Blair, Cambria and Bedford counties.

The issue is compulsory military service, which Congressman Bailey is attacking. He has the support of the women voters and the ex-service men, it is claimed.

A strong Democratic organization is found in these districts.

McAdoo was met by a delegation composed of County Commissioner Houlahen, William J. Brennan, a local attorney, Mrs. Clarence Renshaw, Mrs. Carroll Miller and Mrs. W. S. Moreland. He will pass through Pittsburgh tonight on his way west but will not make any speeches there. McAdoo is traveling on a special train over the Pennsylvania railroad.

REPUBLICAN IN POLITICS

THE TRUCK PROBLEM

The use of heavy trucks is in many places creating a bad situation on the highways. A friend was telling of the condition that had developed in his locality. The main road covering a 10 mile distance between two live towns, had been so chewed up by heavy trucks, that all ordinary travel would go around half a dozen miles farther, rather than traverse such a bad surface. He had seen a single heavily loaded truck, which was paying about $30 a year in registration fees and taxes, do $1,000 worth of damage to a road in a single day.

In some localities municipal authorities are becoming discouraged at the rapid way in which their roads have depreciated during the present season. They are spending much more money than before, and the roads are much worse off than they were in the spring. The motor trucks, tremendously useful though they are, are doing a lot of the damage.

Highway authorities are saying in many states that it will be necessary to put strict limitations upon the use of trucks, except for those that are to run over brick, cement, stone block or other indestructible pavements. It is doubtful if it is economy to use heavy trucks on macadam, gravel, or roads of the ordinary type.

They may seem for the time being to cheapen transportation. But they place a heavy burden on the people to keep up roads for them to tear up.

Motor trucks will be tremendously useful and the use of them will increase. But the general run of them may have to be made of a lighter type. And their best use is in collecting products to take to railroad centers, rather than for long distance shipments. The country must depend principally on its railroads for its transportation, and they must be improved and well equipped.

THE FIRE ON THE HEARTH

When people used to come back to their old homes, it was often called a reunion at the family hearthstone. The fire on the hearth was a center of family life. Not merely was cookery performed there in the old days before stoves, but it was a gathering place where intimate thoughts were revealed and plans for the future were made.

In these days many homes are built without any hearthstone. They seem like a body without a soul. But the crackling fire on the open hearth is still cherished by millions of people. It promotes reflection, it loosens tongues, it suggests reminiscenses and conversation, and adds good cheer to the family circle. Builders who put up houses without this center of warmth and life, do not know how much they detract from the value of their construction.

BUYING A HOUSE

A great many people are joining the Own Your Own Home Movement, not from choice but from compulsion. They are informed that if they are not able to buy, they will have to move. Many people in search of homes find none to rent, but there are plenty they can buy.

It seems a discouraging proposition to most people to buy a house of some age. They see all that needs to be done, and at present prices it seems prohibitive. Yet most people could do a lot of the work themselves. Or if they were willing to have improvements made at off seasons, they might get it done for less.

The people who buy a good substantial house and pay about the ruling price, rarely regret it. As building materials grow scarce, and towns grow, a well built house advances in value instead of depreciating.

WHY PEOPLE ADVERTISE

In deciding what stores are likely to give the best service, the purchasre of home and personal supplies might well ask what motives lead stores to advertise, and how the advertised store differs from the non-advertised one.

The principal motive that leads merchants to advertise, is confidence in their ability to win out in the competitive struggle.

Some merchants go into business hoping merely to get what share of trale falls to them naturally. Having a good position, they expect that a certain number of people will be attracted by their show windows, and will come in and buy.

Any store will get a certain amount of trade in that way. But it is having to butt up all the time against stores that are not satisfied to take what comes to them by chance and habit, but are determined to reach out by active and positive methods to win new friends every day.

PARADISE FOR THE INDOLENT

Stress of Modern Life Unknown Among the Inhabitants of the Marquesas Islands.

Persons possessing $1,000 who like the indolent life of the tropics where winter is unknown can spend the remainder of their lives in the Marquesas islands in the Pacific ocean, where they need only work two hours a day to catch fish and pick bananas and spend the remainder of the day watching the skyblue sea wash lazily over the golden sands.

The money would be required to pay a second-class passage from one of the Pacific coast ports, with outfit, and the balance to purchase fertile land at $2 an acre.

The Marquesas are situated in 8 to 11 south latitude and 140 west longitude and are of volcanic origin and mountainous. They are under the French republic and the commissioner lives at Taiohai, the chief town, which is on the island of Nukawa. There were 4,300 inhabitants in the islands when the census was taken in 1900, but the natives, who are Christians, have dwindled away since then. There are 3,800 square miles in the thirteen islands, which compose the Marquesas group. The chief products are tropical fruit, copra and mother of pearl. The landing is difficult, as the shore goes up like a wall from the sea.

Passengers arriving from the Pacific say that the climate of the Marquesas is ideal and that life there is one long day dream, with no disturbing element beyond the silver-tongued notes of the bulbul at sunset from its lofty perch on the ancient baobabs by the seashore.—New York Times.

Korean Women Nameless.

The Korean woman has not even a name. In childhood she receives a nickname, by which she is known in the family and by her friends, but, when she arrives at maturity, it is employed only by "the sister of" or "the daughter of" such a person.

After her marriage her name is buried; she is absolutely nameless. If it happens that a woman has to appear in a law court the judge gives her a special name for use while the case lasts, in order to save time and to simplify matters.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to dozens of my friends and shall always recommend it."—LILLIAN THARP, 824 S. 6th St., Carrollton, Ky.

Candles on Toast!

An adult Eskimo is capable of consuming twenty pounds of flesh and oil daily. A Yakut will wash down this quantity of flesh with a quart or two of train-oil and take as dessert a dozen tallow candles.

A famous naturalist, who cooked part of a boa constrictor, declared that it tasted very much like veal. On another occasion he tested crocodile and pronounced the flesh excellent.

Frobisher and Settle both commented on the way the inhabitants around Hudson's Bay used to eat grass. "Such grass," says Settle, "as the country produceth, they pluck up and eat not dressed or salad wise, but like brute beasts."

Humboldt tells of men living on the banks of the Orinoco who eat earth. They knead the earth into balls of from four to six inches in diameter, and bake them before a slow fire.

ing Burleigh Grimes for enough runs to win.

It was his third victory of the series, and it gave him what perhaps may be a world's series record when he held the Robins to two runs in twenty-seven innings.

Uncle William Robinson played his last ace when he sent Grimes in for his third start of the series.

The husky southpaw, winner of the second game, did have a few breaks go against him, but it was a combination of a single and a triple and two doubles that ruined his game.

Brooklyn wanted to win and take the Indians back east for the last stand. They fought desperately to do it.

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

In serious family council Joel Talbott, his wife and the daughter of the house, Ruth, discussed the important subject of the marriage of the son and brother, Waldron, for two years manager of a small wholesale mercantile house in the city.

"Miss Arline Burt,' spoke Joel Talbott—"a pretty name."

"And pretty herself," volunteered Ruth spontaneously. "Have you seen her pictures, father?"

"I am about to show them to you," interrupted Mrs. Talbott with a certain severe dignity that was rather ominous. "Waldron has sent us four—a sort of goddess of the season series" and Mr. Talbott regarded the speaker a trifle uneasily, for his wife's tones were tinged with something of sarcasm and bitterness. He wondered why, and was soon enlightened. An envelop containing four photographs was handed to him. He inspected them with curiosity and admiration and made the sprightly remark:

"Pretty as a picture, isn't she?"

"That is a question," remarked Mrs. Talbott rather snappishly. "I am not the woman to criticise or interfere in my son's private affairs, but I am bound to think of his welfare."

"Why, what are you talking about, Martha?" interrogated her husband in vague surprise.

"If you have eyes, can't you see for yourself?" challenged Mrs. Talbott. "Those four pictures tell the tale, don't they?"

"I think she is the most charmingly dressed being I ever looked upon," said Ruth.

"Why, yes," nodded Mr. Talbott approvingly.

"Oh! you do?" flared forth the wife and mother. "And let me ask, have you considered what those clothes must cost? Why, the girl simply has the latest and costliest gowns that Paris can make."

"Well, even so," suggested the tolerant Mr. Talbott, "she's fitted out for a whole year, isn't she?"

"Yes, and oh! how I would like to see those lovely dresses," cried Ruth.

Mrs. Talbott was for writing at once to Waldron, exhorting him to think twice before he took to himself a ruinously extravagant wife. There her husband set his foot down hard. It was not their province to interfere in the heart affairs of Waldron. Perhaps he was wedding an heiress who could afford to wear what she liked. But this idea Mrs. Talbott scouted utterly by alluding to a letter written in the past by Waldron, in which he had stated that his fiancee was poor, worked for her living, but was good as gold, and would make him a helpful, economical wife.

"Economical!" shrugged Mrs. Talbott, and looked desperate.

"A sister-in-law to be proud of, anyway!" whispered Ruth to herself.

"I don't blame Waldron for falling in love with such a dream of a beauty," soliloquized the old man.

In a couple of weeks the news came informing the family of the wedding. It was a modest, unpretentious affair.

The happy wedded pair were to come to the Talbott home for a week and due preparations were made to receive them, although Mrs. Talbott went about her duties under protest. She feared that the bride was likely to appear as a capricious, overdressed creature, vain and extravagant, a sort of human doll, with finery and display the leading characteristics of her shallow nature.

It was upon a Tuesday that the wedded pair were expected. Ruth, at the gate on the tiptoe of expectation looking for them, was surprised to see a cab drive up in front of the house discharging a single passenger, a plain, but neatly dressed lady with a suit case, whom she immediately recognized as her sister-in-law. Arline was wondrously pretty and graceful and there was no affectation, but eager, pleased delight as she was welcomed by Ruth and her mother.

"Waldron had some business to attend to at Wyndham," explained Arline, "and will be on with the trunks tomorrow. How homelike and cozy it is here. Mother, dear, let me help around until Waldron comes, won't you?"

She reappeared from her room clad in a simple gingham gown, wearing no jewelry but her wedding ring, and presenting not the slightest trace of artificiality. Mrs. Talbott was disarmed by her sensible, sensible ways, but Ruth awaited the arrival of those trunks with joyful anticipations.

"There certainly is no flash and glitter about her," admitted Mrs. Talbott to her husband. "She seems anxious and pleased to fall right into our home ways and help all she can."

"I never was so disappointed in my life," posted Ruth to girl friends the next day when the expected treasure boxes, the trunk arrived. "Why, I've seen pretty a common frock and a pink organdie and a white lawn as she has.

"Quite lot economical," noted Mrs. Talbott, and blushed out the mutilations of magnificence the pictures had fixed in their mind.

"Why did you think all that finery belonged to me?" smiled Arline. "Indeed no! You see I was working for a garment house as engrosser girl. That is, I used for their fashion plates in their newest and finest styles."

"Arline needs no garniture to make her prettier than she is!" declared Waldron.

"She certainly does not!" said his father admiringly, and with enthusiasm.

Optimistic Thought.

Time is a better comforter than reflection.

Coal Strike Believed to be Nearing End

(By United Press)

Wilkesbarre, Oct. 14—With back pay amounting to close to $5,000,000 in the pay envelope to be distributed tomorrow and with a tentative settlement of all grievances being enforced, the protracted war in the anthracite fields between miners and operators appeared today to be nearing an end.

Several companies have already completed paying the men on the retroactive scale and have entered into the spirit of the new agreement as an accepted settlement. The few companies in this region that have failed to pay the men on this scale, have announced their intention to do so next pay day.

In the Pittston district all men are reported to have returned with the acceptance of the new employment are reasons and the abandonment of the contract plan.

Mine contractors who were released by the coal companies accepting the agreement are in some instances working as miners and in others they are reported to have retired or taken up other forms of occupation.

INJURED BY AUTO

RELIC OF MEDIEVAL TIMES

Sacred City of Mongolia Has But a Thin Veneer of the Civilization of Today.

Urga, sacred city of the Living Buddha, lying far to the north of Mongolia, is a relic of medieval times overlaid with a veneer of twentieth century civilization, and is a city of violent contrasts and glaring anachronisms. It was used as a base of supplies by Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of the second Asiatic zoological expedition of the American Museum of Natural History.

Motor cars pass camel caravans fresh from the Gobi desert; lady lamas in bright robes walk side by side with Occidental priests and swarthy Mongol women in the fanciful headdress of their race stare wide-eyed at the latest fashion plates in Russian shop windows, relates a correspondent of the Detroit News. Three great races have met in Urga, and each marches on its own business and way of life. The Mongol's fatalism, for instance, has remained unchanged; the Chinese shop with the wealth, caution and thoroughness of all true Chinese, and the Russian refugees practically themselves to be Russian.

Men from all parts and corners of the earth gather together. All Mongolia lives on hope—that is, it will never work when it has enough funds if he can help it. Business in Mongolia is slow at best, and in the time for the harvest one does not work and the caravans do not move, and the great plateau is empty. It is not to leave the Soviet to starve.

Leaders Must Pay Price.

The price satisfaction is being paid by the leaders of Mongolia. It is not to be expected that the people will be on a standing. The [illegible] in this country [illegible] in the world. [illegible] in the [illegible] in the [illegible] in the

PLACING CROWN ON PAGODA

Solemn Ceremony at Mandalay That Attracted Crowds of the Devout Followers of Buddha.

A curious festival was held not long ago in Mandalay, the chief town of Burma. A new pagoda dedicated to the Buddhist religion was to be completed by the placing of a huge crown or thi upon its summit, more than 300 feet above the ground.

To witness the ceremony came Buddhists from Indo-China, from the Himalayas, from Laos and Chan and Siam. Warriors from Katschin, Sorcerers from Mot and people from other places made a medley of languages like that at Babel.

On a street corner would be seen a barber pulling a customer's tooth. On another corner a Mohammedan bird dealer sold caged paroquets to Buddhists who piously set them free. At very modern booths one could buy ice cream, soda or tea. Mandalay was a gorgeous spectacle and the new pagoda was the center of it.

Every pagoda has at its summit a thi, or cap, the placing of which is often a herculean task. The one now to be raised weighed several hundred pounds and consisted of a gilded ball and crown and a great spindle above it.

To get it to the top an inclined plane of bamboo scaffolding like a huge toboggan slide had been built, and was decorated with silk flags and umbrellas. Up the inclined plane the heavy cap was slowly pulled. Six days were required for the ascent and a seventh to fasten it in place.

WORK OF SPONGE GATHERERS

Divers Go to Great Depths to Collect Them From the Rocks to Which They Are Fxed.

Sponges are of many qualities, but the most highly prized is that of Syria, with a cuplike shape and a yellowish pale color, which is found in a number of varieties.

The large sponge fisheries are situated along the seashores of Greece, Syria and of certain parts of the Adriatic, as well as along the Tripoli and Tunisian seashores. The fishing of sponges is effected by divers who are let down from a boat to depths of 10, 20 and sometimes 25 meters, and pull the sponges from the rocks to which they are fixed. Some sponge fishermen use a long trident, but this system is fortunately falling into disuse, since it spoils the sponges. In better-equipped fishing grounds the gathering of sponges is effected by divers provided with diving bells or dressed in cork jackets.

Upon being gathered the sponges are squeezed, beaten and washed in order to rid them of their black coating and soft substance which gives them a very characteristic chlorine odor. When they begin to whiten they are subjected to a frequently renewed solution of sulphuric acid.

Why Go to College?

I know a young Yale graduate in Philadelphia who is now convinced that a college education is a bar to wealth. "Girard" writes in the Philadelphia Press.

He is a clever electrician and got a job after leaving Yale which paid him $30 a week. In his new place he came in contact with an uneducated foreman who tried to persuade the college lad to "turn a day laborer and join the union."

He was assured that in a fortnight he could get $60 a week.

The young son of Eli stuck to his electrical job and when wiring a building in Philadelphia a boss painter told him he could get double the $30 a week he was then getting if he took up the paint brush.

Do you wonder that this youth who holds his Yale sheepskin is puzzled in figuring out just how a college education pays him?
